

OLD AND YOUNG

Old people like the old fashioned way of mating while young people like to do a lot. Young people are very active and like to dance, go to concerts, movies, travel, get drunk and fight. Old people can teach young people a lot . . . ways of being good and very successful.

Young people are more into the preservation of our earth . . . more concerned about our future. We are doing things today that some old people dreamed they could do.

Old people have much more responsibilities and take them in a respectful way. Their minds are not as energetic as before. Old take their problems too hard and they get frustrated. Their minds is mostly on work. The world in the minds of these people are full of boring things and complications. Young people take things from a cheerful point of view. They are not as responsible with their things as old are. Young minds are always thinking of something sneaky and fun to do. Young people don't worry too much about school and work.

Young people love adventure which makes them wild. They are less set into their ways. Some think they should meet the expectations of adults. Others think that adults are not fair and they want their freedom. Young people like to follow the crowd and don't like to do things that embarrass them. When a young person tells an old person they are wrong, they get mad. Old people like to favor one person for the other. Old people like to brag about their children. Some old people like to stay with young people.

Most of the older people have more respect for others, unlike some young people. Older people don't use drugs, as often as young adults do. Young adults are more active. They can do more things faster, but they aren't smarter than some older adults.

The people that are considered old always would talk about what they did when they was a kid and how they was raised and nothing but boring stuff. Young people are always talking about what's in style, the newest dance, music and movies. We talk about fresh parties, new looks, hairstyles and clothes.

Old people want to do what young people do. They think they are not special anymore. They need more to look forward to. Being young you have more of a life to look forward to.

Young people usually think about adventure and fun. They like to day dream about the future. Young people like to play a lot and have vivid and wild imaginations. Young people like to change a lot and move along with the style. Old people usually like the way they are and are in no hurry. Young people like to travel in the world while old people like to stay put in a quiet neighborhood. Old people think they are too old to do anything. Old people are usually wiser and have more experience. Older people sometimes like to stay old because they are more comfortable and they could try to prepare things for younger generations. The most concrete similarity is they both will be young and old.

Young people would go to sleep late and old people early.

Young people have no sense enough to be themselves. They always have to follow a crowd.

Old people wish very much that they were young again. They sometimes think that young people don't want to be around them. Old people see some young as being noisy, messy, and annoying. Young people sometimes think that old people are always grouchy and mean.

Old people sit around the house and watch TV. Young are usually out all day. Young people don't worry about getting old or dying. Young people can take more punishment. Old people can't have sex like they used to either. Young people can have sex all day if they wanted to, but they would sure get old pretty quick because sex takes a lot out of you.

A young person's attitude, as well as an old person's attitude may differ in some ways because of the environment in which they live.

The young like wild and crazy things, lead a zany life. The old like quiet and relaxing things and enjoy a lot of peace. Old don't want to get caught up in today's world, but to only think of memorable times. The young like to voice their feelings.

Young people look toward the future. Old people look at the present. Most old people like to sit around. While a young person likes to explore and discover new things. Young people don't consider old people as fun to be with. They think they are boring. A young person is more imaginative. An old person needs someone to rely on, like a spouse. A young person depends more on his/her self. . . more independent.

Younger people can stay out as long as they want and never get tired.

Young people have more excitement. They are ready for life. They really want to know the world better. Young people really get into more of the fun

As a person gets older they lose their reflexes and their energy. A young person can break dance and pop, while an old man could only walk to get the paper and back. They were both someone's child.

The old know that things don't always go as planned and never trust someone you don't know. The young always complain that the old are paranoid, but the old know that if you don't know both sides to something you might get more bad than good.

Young are always wanting something new. They want to try everything, even if it means risking your life. One of the reasons for this is the fact they are afraid of getting old and settling down. Kids know that deep inside freedom comes with responsibility.

Old is not being able to work or to think that fast or well. The young people can think fast, go out and run around a lot.

Old people have experienced the immature acts and have learned.

Young people don't have the responsibilities as a old person has. Old people have more rights than young people.

The mind of a young person is quick and more intelligent than old people. The brain reacts much more quicker and accurate than an old person. The mind of an old person is slow and less accurate than a young person.

Young people enjoy loud and wild parties. Old people just enjoy quiet and calm parties. Young people learn faster. Old people learn something and usually forgets it. Young people think about romance. The younger you are the faster you imitate people.

They like to do a lot of things like bike riding, tree climbing and looking at nasty pictures of girls in the nude. The way they think is in a sometimes nasty or active.
