What is trust?

Do you feel you trust someone in this room right now?

How about everyone?

Obviously you can't trust everyone, especially if you don't even know them.

Soooo...

Here's an opportunity to get to know them a little better.

A) Big Group

1) Names

Name Alliteration

- a) Choose an adjective that describes you and has the same first letter as your first name.
- b) Go around the group and state your new name and why did you choose this name?

B) Small Groups

- 1) Write a skit about a character who you could not trust, or would do something that would keep you from trusting them.

C) Act out the skits

- 1) Discuss after each skit what the person did and see if the group agrees that the “un-trust-worthy” person really is un-trust-worthy.

D) Blindfold game

- 1) partner up... 1 person gets a blindfold. The other person is the director. NO TALKING!!!! They must guide the blindfolded person around the course. so that they do not bump into anything.
- 2) at the end, switch and go around again
- 3) Give more people blindfolds, and make the chain longer 2, 3, 4, etc. people blindfolded and guided by a single director.

E) Close Up

- 1) What did the game have to do with trust?
- 2) Our goal for the year is to get everyone here to trust everyone else. How can we make this possible?
