

Better grades tend to come from high school students whose parents are actively involved in their lives, according to a U.S. Department of Education survey of 30,000 students.

The survey shows the percentages of parents who know their kids' whereabouts for these average grades achieved by the students:

Mostly A's	88 percent
Mostly B's	81 percent
Mostly C's	72 percent
Mostly D's	61 percent

Is studying while millions
starve
like fiddling
while
Rome
burns?

What good
is a college education?

It's Academic

