

THE INDIVIDUALITY GAME

This game helps a person realize just how unique and special to God he or she really is. Give each group member one chocolate chip cookie. This is their special cookie. Ask them to remember the cookie size, the amount of chips, the location of the chips, any special pattern of chips, and any other unique features. Then break into small groups. Each group combines and mixes up their cookies. After this, each person has to find his or her own cookie. No one can take anyone else's. If a person disagrees with someone regarding certain cookies, have both state reasons why they think the cookie in question is theirs. The application is that if all these cookies can be differentiated by their uniqueness, how much more unique we must be to God.
