

HUMBLENESS

Humbleness,
meekness,
first requires
pride surrender--
the breastplate
of the ego.

To not be humble,
is to be controlled,
therefore,
to not know spirit,
to not know peace,
to not know true happiness,
to not know love.

For one cannot be
humble,
until one learns
insignificance.

Sometimes
humbleness comes
from lost,
or suffering
to regain one's spirit,
to truly know spirit,
to pay tribute to the spirit,
to honor and
heed the Great Spirit.

I am made humble
by the awakening of my own spirit which is born within me, born of the Great Spirit,
is the Great Spirit.
