

MAD @ ME?

My Dear Child,

I understand.

I know that you could easily get angry with a best friend or family member, and that is all I've hoped to be for you.

Getting mad is part of life and being angry with me is not a problem.

I think the only way it could become a problem is if in your anger you slam the door to your heart in my face.

So get mad if you like; just PLEASE don't slam that door- it hurts so much. When you are angry at me because I have not done something you think I should have; remember that I give human beings freedom, and that is usually the reason for the thing you n=may be mad about.

I love people so much.

I am always ready to let my healing goodness and power come into the world and people's lives. But if it is not received or welcome; I will never force myself on anyone.

The reason why things have gone the way they did in your earthly life will be shown to you in heaven. For now, trust that what you will learn then is true now- that all things happen for an ultimate good; for my goodness and glory to be revealed.

Remember that there is no one I have ever loved more (or less) than you. When I was Dying on the cross, I was thinking of you. I was suffering so bad, but I had such joy in my heart; knowing that what I was going through would make it possible for you and I to spend eternity together in heaven.

Love always,

your friend no matter what- Jesus
