

SO THAT

So that we would have light, you made yourself blind.

So that we would be united, you experienced separation from the Father.

So that we would possess wisdom, you became "ignorance."

So that we would be clothed again in innocence,
you became "sin."

So that we would have hope, you almost despaired.

So that God would be in us, you experienced his distance.

So that heaven would be ours, you experienced hell.

To give us an easy journey on earth among hundreds of brothers, you expelled yourself from heaven and from earth, from men and from nature.

You are God. You are my God,
our God of infinite love.
