

One Man

Crystal Lewis

we are living on borrowed time we all have hopes and dreams our future is fading rapidly only a few will see life is not always what it seems even the best will fall why does the past bring us to see we are in such great need

what do you want from me
even the best can see
my life is better now

one man to take care of us one man who is big enough one man who sees every hurt one man who can change the earth one man who takes all the pain of everyone who calls his name one man, one man, one man!

we all want more than what we need we want to win the race people are falling far behind aren't we the chosen kind broken souls who can't keep pace longing to find their way looking for someone who can lead a lonely world in need

what do you want from me
even the best can see
my life is better now

what do you want from me
even the best can see
my life is better now

what do i have to do i'm trying to reach for you i want you to know this man