

Sexuality

-maintaining a sexual code that does not use others for our own pleasure

Protect your integrity by maintaining your boundaries (limits):

-plan ahead

-know the strength of your enemy

-don't expect it to be easy

Sex

Why did God give you sex? For the purpose of bonding in love and pleasure with the woman you have promised your life to

2- to if it be his will, bring new life into the world.

Of course it's pleasurable, who would bother to do it if it wasn't And then how would God's work continue if humans didn't feel like reproducing!

So many guys end up in situations in their youth where they feel they have to make a sexual conquest to prove their manhood. Guys can be ignorant, taunting and teasing those in the group who are not sexually active. This can even happen with families pressuring the teen to have sex as a rite of passage.

Years ago in societies across the world, when life was simpler, as soon as a young man or woman reached puberty, their parents would arrange a mate for them, and they would be having sex and reproducing in their teenage years. Today teens are not in a position to support themselves and a new family. The world requires a greater degree of specialization for employment requires a longer period of education for most, and delays the marriage and parenting stage of life. Meanwhile young men are feeling all kinds of natural, biological God-given urges for sex, opening the door for adultery, masturbation, pornography, prostitution, all kinds of sexual outlets that God never intended.

You don't have to prove your manhood or anything to anybody ever.

You are a man of God, you are the beloved son of the Father, the creator of the universe.

Nobody takes that away from you.

Anyone else's standards are meaningless and worthless to you.

Living in God's Holy Spirit, these simple truths will be obvious to you.

-you have control over who you will have sex with. realized that long term gratification is a reward in itself
