

M & M'S CANDY NIGHT

Here's a party idea that makes good use of those famous little candy-covered chocolates. Reese's Pieces, Smarties, or similar candies can be used. Have everyone bring a package. Then play games like these (and make up some of your own):

- M & M Relay. Team members run to a table where a package of M & M's are poured for them. They must eat the whole package without using their hands.
- M & M Blowing Contest. Each team must blow a pile of M & M's from one point to another—ten feet away will do.
- Find the M & M's. Have one team hide a package of M & M's around the room, and the other team must find as many of the candies as it can within the time limit. Make some colors worth more points than others.
- M & M Push. Have kids push M & M's along a course with their noses, relay style.
- M & M Trading. Give each kid a few random M & M's and have them trade among themselves for the colors they like best. After the trading announce which colors are worth the most points. Or have an M & M auction, using M & M's as money.
