

Pictionary

This is a great game for leading into a study on relationships. In Pictionary one team member is given the name of an object or concept that they must draw for their team on paper without using words, numbers or symbols. The first team to figure out the answer wins. You can use your own words or the cards from a Pictionary game. Play as many rounds as you want, or you can make the team member act out the concept, object or phrase.
