

ROOOOOOOOTAAAAATE!

“Rotate!” isn’t just for volleyball.

Every time you stop on a road trip, have your teenagers rotate one seat to the left—people on the far left go back a row and to the right, and the person in the back-left moves up to shotgun. This keeps people from getting bored, breaks up cliques and “romantic pairings,” and helps people connect with people they might not normally interact with.

You can occasionally randomly choose a seat position to win a free dessert or lunch or some other prize.
